BORNFREE

Homecoming Students Celebrate Pajama Day

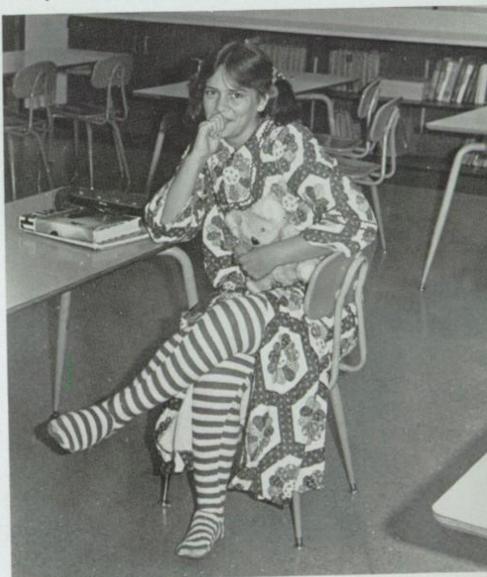

Kim Perrault might not be ready for school, but she sure seems to be having fun.

Yes Jeanne, that balloon isn't as light as your head!

Beauty and the Beast! Which is which?

Don't tell anyone, but my thumb really tastes good.

"I'm not heavy; I'm your classmate," Renee Schroeder tells Scott Stenger before the big race.

"Who kidnapped Andy?" Screams Raggedy Meg Zelton.

Sandwiched between two animals, Heather Quimby enjoys pagama day.

And T-Shirt and Tie Day

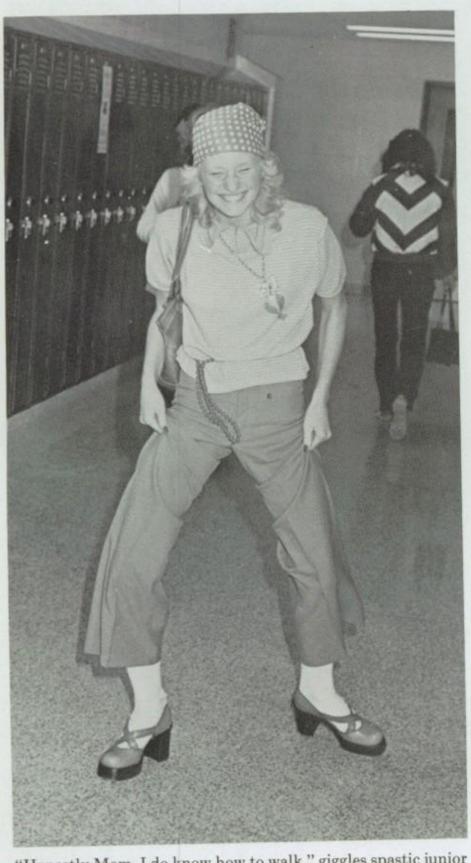

Heading for lunch, Kim Parczik realizes she isn't tied-up.

With the latest in T-shirts and ties, Debbie Schneider and Bridget O'Leary stroll to class.

Spirit Spreads During Radical, Western, And Color Days

"Honestly Mom, I do know how to walk," giggles spastic junior Martha Nelson.

Renee Schroeder faces the slogan "Four".

P. Smits, B. Kilmer, and C. Daul "mickey mouse" around with M. Zelten because of the crowning touch on her cheerleading uniform.

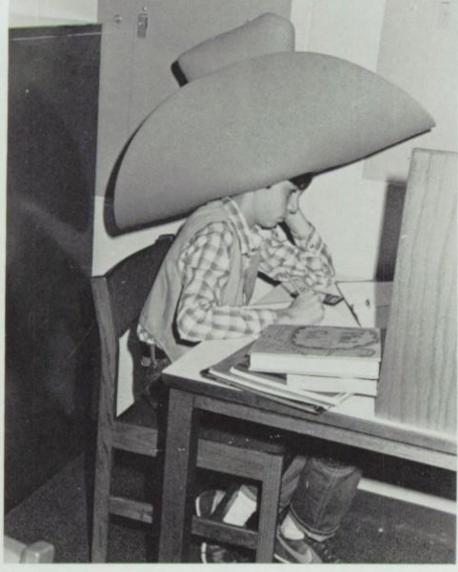

Ain't you never saw me in a blonde wig before?

Randy Christensen prepares to give himself an advantage in the race with peanut Dan McNamara.

Dave Steeno wishes his brain was a big as his hat as he tries to concentrate during Western Day.

What? Me worry? Never! I might not know the score, but I'm ready.

Being Something Else Keys A Successful Spirit Week

Heather Quimby assures us that she is really a fashionable lass.

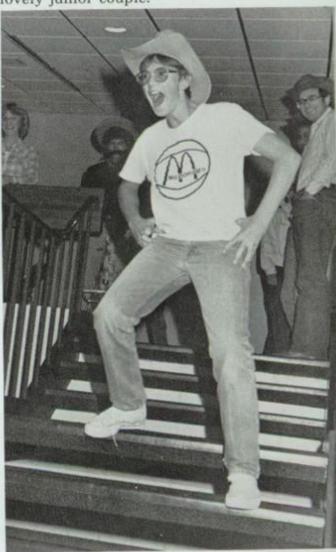

In the true western spirit, Sue VandeVen is ready to eliminate Redskin Dave Rentmeester.

Carol Linzmeyer, Lynn Christensen, and Debbie Kaster aren't the three bears waiting for Goldilocks, but are three spirited Redbirds waiting for a victory.

Steve Smits and Kim Nelson are just another lovely junior couple.

During lunch Jeff Miller bellows out his John Wayne imitation.

Representing the freshmen, Amy Jakubovsky and Dale Schumerth augh their way through a piggyback race.

Tina Scray's painted face reveals that De Pere Redbirds are number one.

unchback Lynn Heller enjoys having the first place

Wendy Lund doesn't clown around.

"De Pere girls never looked this good," says Dave Bollom.

P. Bourassa and Don Bruhn, 1981 homecoming king and queen, crown C. Runnoe and D. Neumeyer, 1982's reigning couple.

M. VanErem's quick hand-off to C. VanRemortel makes for a successful junior skit.

Homecoming Court: Row one: L. Hultman, M. Christenson, A. Black, J. Verber, Queen C. Runnoe, King D. Neumeyer, H. Mathews, J. Edler, J. Hussong, S. Cuene. Row two: K. Ives, R. Bennett, S. Rohde, S. Fox, S. VanderMissen, D. Miller, S. Burnton, B. Denis, C. Grunwaldt, B. Bluett.

Students Become "Stir Crazy" With Spirit

Laura Bilotti leads her dance class in the senior skit.

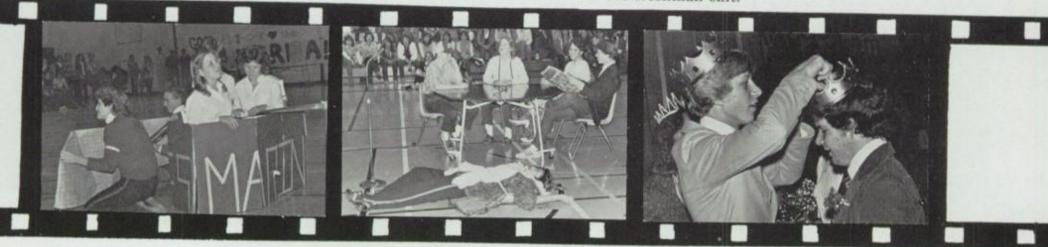

Sophomores prove that it's never good sailing for the Marines.

D. Baker and J. Miller test the new ala carte lunch served by Chef J. Hanner.

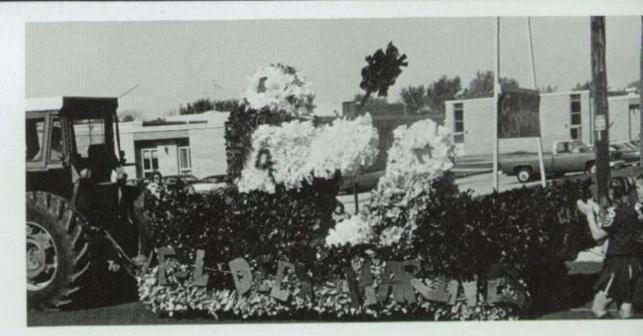

Michelle Bourassa isn't too sure about sacrificing her life for the freshman skit.

De Pere High "Floats"

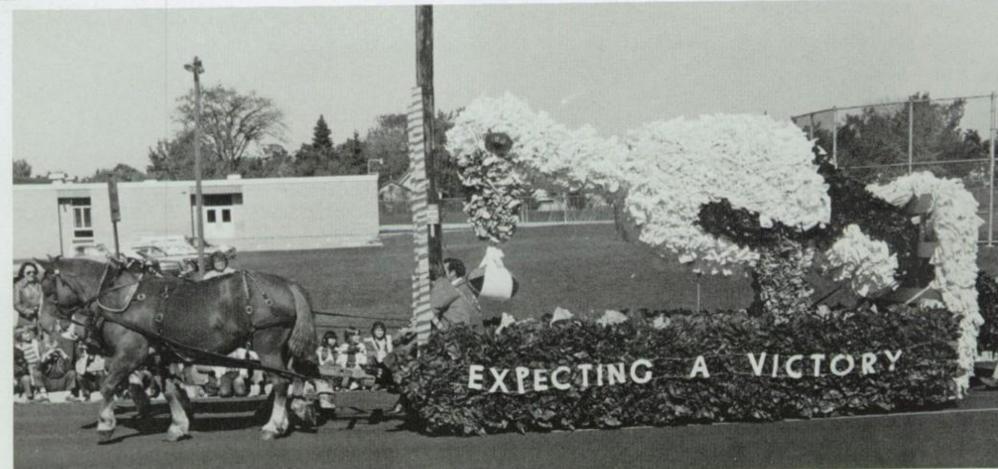

FFA's equestrians proudly form the parade's flag brigade.

Sophomore Float: "We'll deck the Marines."

Freshman Float: "We'll sink 'em in the '4' seas!"

Coast To Coast Through Homecoming

Senior Float: "We'll beat the 'hull' out of 'em."

The De Pere band strikes up some marching music for the homecoming parade.

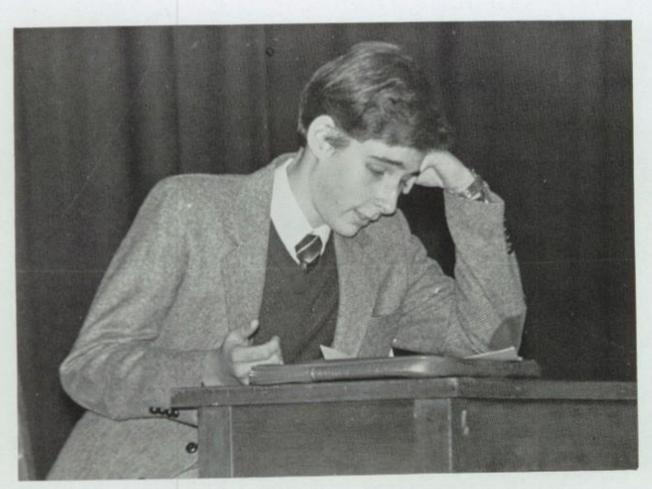

Juniors display their "Go East" spirit.

Junior Float: "We'll sub the Marines."

Faculty Float? "The Marines are sunk."

John Church quickly shatters the dreams of a lovesick student.

Judy VanStraten declares what love really means.

One-Act Play: Row one: D. Giovannini, M. Burd, L. Hutchins, S. Grosskopf, S. Coyle, G. Loppnow, K. Johnson, B. Kilmer, J. VanStrater, Row two: A. Hagemeister, K. Nelson, R. Meyer, S. Barry, K. Smits, J. Garnett, V. Smith, S. Dilweg, D. Schumerth, B. VanBeckum, Janssen, Director, S. Ziemann. Row three: J. Bunker, S. Smits, J. Church, B. Rameker.

reta Loppnow is certainly "in Character."

"Up The Down Staircase," A Smash Hit For One-Act Play Cast

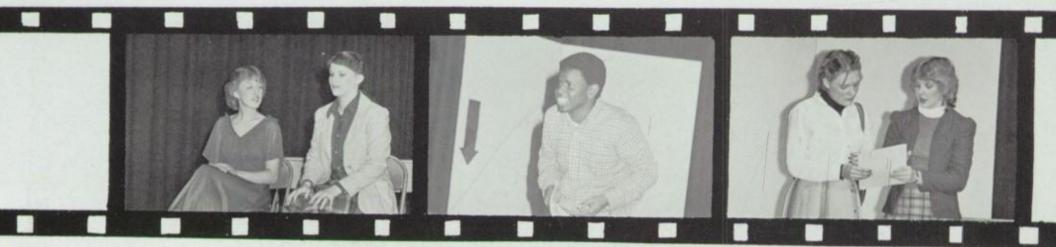

Valerie Smith explains her intricate counseling system to first-year teacher Anna Hagemeister.

roublemaker Steve Smits cannot accept the system nor the double lking school authorities.

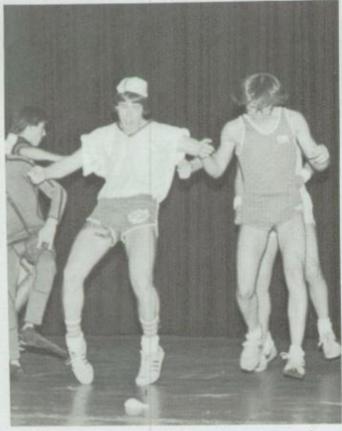

Sue Barry meticulously applies stage make up to Karen Smits' face

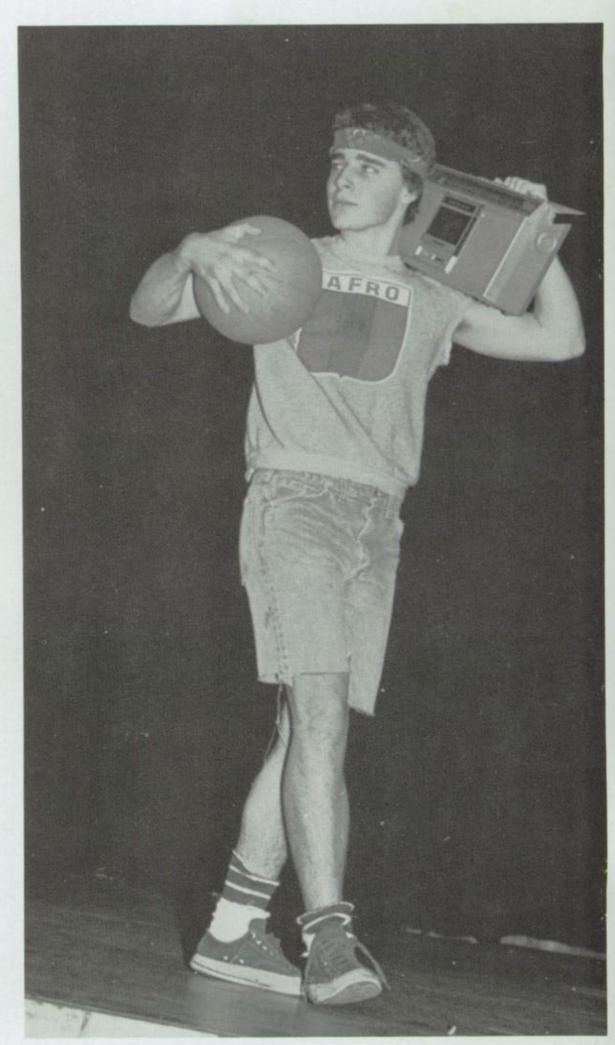

First Annual Student Body Contest

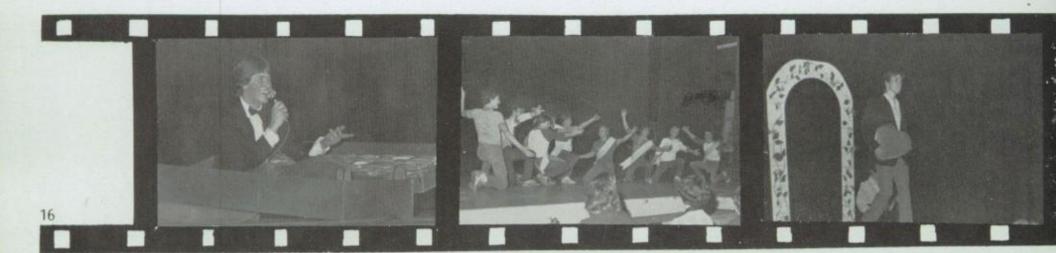

Ed Guerriero impresses all the girls with his "spiffy" clothes.

Paul Koch and Paul Oleksy practice to be the next Barishnikovs.

Dave Rentmeester models his ghetto get-up.

Bill Nelson, Mr. Student Body 1981-82.

Chris Plautz cooks up a heavenly dish.

Barney gives everyone chance to say "Pow!"

All the contestants show what "macho men" they are.

Santa Highlights Christmas Assembly

Mr. Pierce gets a supply of Turtle Wax to keep his head "shiny and bright."

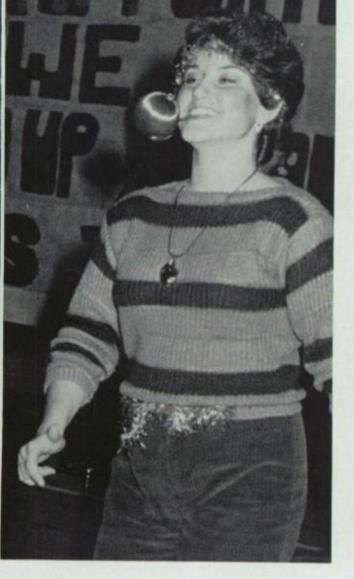

Bill Bluett "goes Hawaiian."

Santa (Mr. Hanner) checks his list to find out who's naughty and who's nice.

Laura Bilotti smiles at the anticipation of what's to come.

Mr. Jacklin is thrilled to get new shoe strings for his tennis shoes.

Steve Stine, come on down!

Neils Christensen gets a dictionary so he can speak da English.

Kelly Champ plays Cupid for Mrs. Ziemann and Keith Hussong.

"The Entertainers"

Bruce Rameker has visions as he sings of a perfect home.

The Bondage Boys "Get Physical"

Betsy Bell tickles the Ivories.

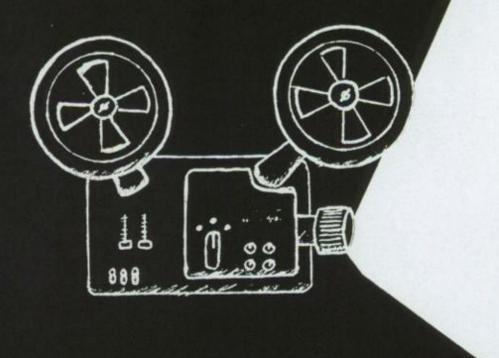

Beginning to see what life is all about, we are learning to understand ourselves, as well as others surrounding our daily lives. Being a freshman is just the start ... to a new beginning.

As a sophomore, we are beginning to finally "fit in." We can be seen "toolin" around De Pere, as well as in the country. When we begin to realize that this place isn't too bad, we're already half way through.

Being a junior is almost a dream. Just think, we're upperclassmen, and we were just getting used to the fact that we're high school. Things went so fast. Whoever dreamed we would be organizing a prom, much less awaiting that final year. We used to think those seniors were so "big;" now we're actually on the final stretch to being one.

What we had waited for is now about over. As seniors we ran the school and had the other kids looking up to us. But four years of good and bad, sad and happy memories have passed us by. The future will lead us in different directions: some to find a job while others will continue their education. The next few years will present drastic changes in our lives.

Our world is filled with all sorts of music. Records, tapes, television, live concerts are an essential part of present day living. Music wouldn't be so widespread if it weren't enjoyed by everyone.

Radio brings all types of music to our ears. It lacks, however, the personal touch of a real live performance. It's always much more satisfactory and entertaining to have live players than an impersonal recording providing the music. Our vocal and instrumental groups fill this need and also provide any interested student an opportunity to enrich and broaden his life by personally performing music alone and with others.

To get an assorted group of willing student musicians of varying abilities and aptitudes to play together harmoniously and with expression is a hard job. It takes a lot of will working for all concerned. This work gets done well here; thus the results are pleasing.

Band Marches Through Halftime Routines

A week of revised calculations produces a line that is straight as an arrow for S. Wypiszinski, K. Kurschner, and M. Smits.

Eager to entertain the football crowd, K. Schroeder, T. Bosse, B. Rameker, H. Wilson, G. Martinson, and J. Gajeski concentrate on a harmonious performance.

Homecoming parade would be incomplete without the precimelodies.

Paul Oleksy beats his way through the National Anthem, bringing the crowd to their feet.

Lori Siebers puckers up to toot her own horn.

Silver tongued fifers — J. Barry and D. Giovannini --- spin their way through the fine threads of the school song.

Determined to please, the marching band puts its best foot forward, executing another halftime formation.

Swing Choir Puts "Best Foot Forward"

Mark Schelter and JoJo Mattern harmonize as the homecoming court assembles in the gym.

The homecoming assembly features the swing choir singing the homecoming theme.

Garbed for the occasion, swing choir entertains the students at the Christmas assembly with caroles.

Swing Choir: row one: M. Smits, G. Loppnow, N. Plautz, P. Oleksy, A. Norton, M. Kuschel, J. Gilling, L. Kaster, C. Van Remortel, J. Edler, A. Black, Director K. Fitchett. Row two: M. Schelter, K. Ives, S. Eckelaert, J. Mattern, B. Rameker, J. Garnett, B. Adams, K. Ambrosius, J. Coener A. Kuschel, K. Kuschel, T. Sasman.

Orchestra Is "Bound For Glory"

Orchestra: row one: S. Coyle, S. Kullerstrand. Row two: Director A. Mattern, P. Oleksy, B. Rameker, K. Nelson, M. Smits, J. Mattern, K. Bergman, A. Jakubovsky.

Mike Smits strings along on Mozart's Il Re Pastore Overture.

Susie Kullerstrand intently reads her music, waiting for her chance to fiddle around.

Amy Jakubovsky wonders as her fingers wander on her cello during the Christmas concert.

The glee club welcomes the Christmas season with chords of "Gaudeamus Hodie."

Greta Loppnow and Debbie Schneider provide the accompaniment for the glee club.

Melissa Williams' face expresses the sentiments of the song, "Ding Dong, Merrily On High."

Terri Brearley whistles her way through "A Christmas Wish."

"All That Jazz"

Karl Schroeder blows his trumpet to urge De Pere to triumph.

Mike Bastian's and Jonathan Moss's guitars electrify the basketball crowd.

The trumpet section's hot air blows up a storm of enthusiasm before the game.

With no time to change after the JV game, Andy Kuschel does double duty, playing with Dan Stanley and the rest of the stage band.

The Stage Band adds zest to both girls' and boys' basketball games.

Steve Nuthals sets the tempo for stage band and the crowd.

Besides concentrating on the music, the saxophone section must be wary of stray basketballs.

The blow of the trumpets is echoed by the crowd's refrain, "Charge!"

Kevin Payette tickles the ivories.

The darkened auditorium provides a serene setting for the Christmas concert.

LuAnne Wellens and Kerry Fox play as sweetly as "Angles We Have Heard On High."

Concert Band: Row one: K. Levesque, B. O'Leary, K. Hooyman, L. Wellens, K. Fox. Row two: D. Grosbier, M. VanCaster, K. Manning, K. Maes, K. Smits. Row three: S. Treutelaar, R. Lindgren, D. McNamara, M. Schott, A. Jakubovsky, B. Brown, K. Johnson, D. Dickey, P. Janssen.

Row four: J. Pischke, M. Zelten, J. Matzke, J. Lemoine, J. Nelson, D. Bollom, J. Williams, T. Willihnganz, B. Ward, B. Kilmer, J. Sebranek, S. Fels. Standing: K. Johnson, R. Gossen, C. Hounsell.

Concert Band Brightens Holiday Season

Sara Treutelaar and Roy Lindgren join their music companions all playing loudly.

Jeff Pischke has the "oomph" to play the tuba.

Debi Grosbier and Molly VanCaster proves it's no fluke to blow the flute.

Ken Johnson and Rod Gossen lead the way for "Willie, Take Your Drum."

Meg Zelten, Jane Matzke, Matt Schott, and Karen Manning put their talents together in "Holiday Sleigh Ride."

Silver-tongued fifers, Dianne Boschee and Lisa Strong thread a gossamer tune enchanting concert goers.

With a pounding heart, Randy VanCaster strikes up a resonant beat.

Keeping a steady beat, Amy Kaiver blends her tones with Susan Coyle's French horn.

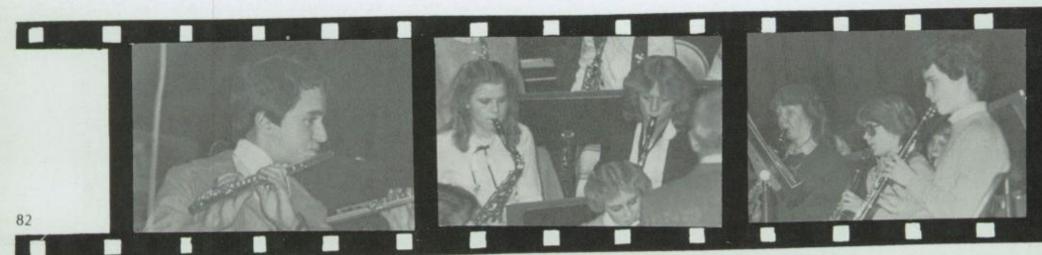

High-flutin' Audrey Rheinschmidt, Jane Barry, and Carol Zehms trill their way through Franz Gruber's "Silent Night."

With precision and style, Kim Kurschner, Mike Smits, and Sue Wypiszinski execute the technical repertoire with astounding ease.

Perfectionist Clare Hounsell sets the tempo to keep the chamber band's performance on a superior level.

Chamber Band Achieves Musical Perfection

Steve Nuthals and Tim Sasman are difficult to beat as "The Little Drummer Boys."

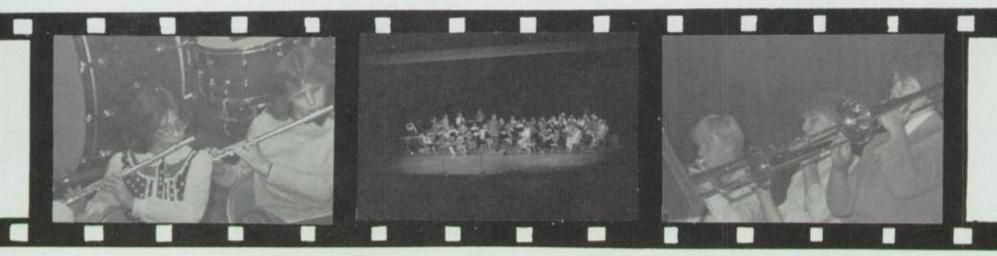

Saxophone players Heather Wilson and Kim Klubertanz team up with flute players Mona Aerts and Jonathon Moss to accompany the orchestra in the Christmas concert.

Chamber Band: row one: J. Moss, M. Aerts, A. Rheinschmidt, C. Zehms, M. Abraham, K. Kurschner, M. Smits, S. Wypiszinski. Row two: J. Coyle, M. Stibbe, D. Giovannini, K. Heinrich, K. Klubertanz, T. "A sound mind in a sound body" is now a platitude, which may cause us to wince when hearing it. It is, however, a platitude because it bears so apparent a truth.

Athletics, here as elsewhere, serve to deal with a moral and morale problem. Without them, that "whole man" we speak of so often in education would not be served. We have a body of muscle and passion, and we must learn to control it if it is to become a means for good. We must not be content with our fragile bodies. We are expected to take what effort we can to ready our bodies for the exhausting life, with its problems and joys, to make life better for ourselves and for those around us. Athletics help us prepare for this work.

These athletics help the high school student build up the stamina to do well what the world has in mind for us.

Medieval folk had a proverb which told them that a donkey could not kick when it was working, that it couldn't work when it was kicking. Organizations keep us busy here at De Pere High School.

But it is not only a negative purpose that they serve. Dominating this is the need that the school has for these organizations. They serve the school.

The groups are various and interesting, and they are appreciated by the faculty and students. Those who engage in them enjoy them, just as any person enjoys the satisfaction of work well done.

Later in life, we as adults will feel nibbled to death by demands on our time. On the road to life fulfillment, knowledge of the need for such organizations will serve us invaluably. It will take the edge off our impatience; it will lead us to see that one works through, not only with, his organizations.

Life In School

Debbie Trinkner finds the serenity of the lockerroom ideal to study shorthand.

Who says Shari Linskens isn't flighty?

When it comes to using the telephone, Greta Loppnow doesn't clown around.

In spite of its charcoal flavor, Julie Van Straten enjoys the ala'carte pizza.

Betsy Bell and Ann Langer "pig out" at the varsity club poker party.

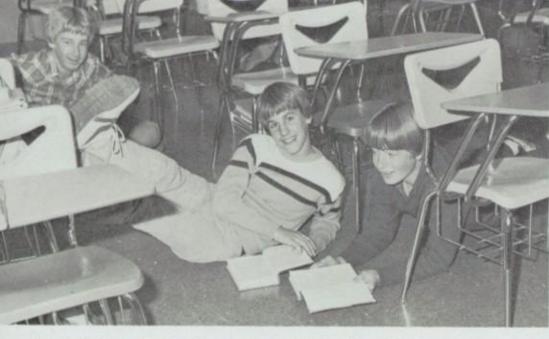

Jim Linssen finds that studying science is no laughing matter.

Mary Hannon and Kathy Kuschel make the "odd couple" look good.

The Fox catches Lisa Siebers before she snaps her picture.

Craig Lallak, Bill Kolb, and Sean Dilweg find the floor more comfortable than the desks.

With every hair in place, Sheila Brady joins Tracy Campbell, and Kay Huxford in the great balloon race.

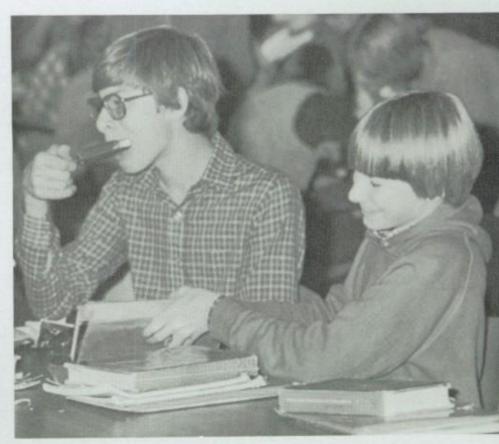

Hot Lunch Saved

The commons is not only the study area but also the cafeteria. Nineteen eighty-one will be remembered as the year of change in the lunch routine. Since the number of students eating hot lunch had dwindled to almost nothing, it was no longer economical to provide students with a hot lunch. As an alternative to dropping hot lunch, an a'la carte program was initiated. Students were able to buy pizza, tacos, hot dogs, hamburgers, turnovers, and ice cream bars. These they eagerly purchased, but they still had the option of buying the entire hot lunch. This change saved the hot lunch program.

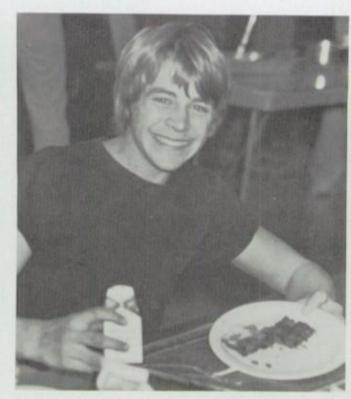

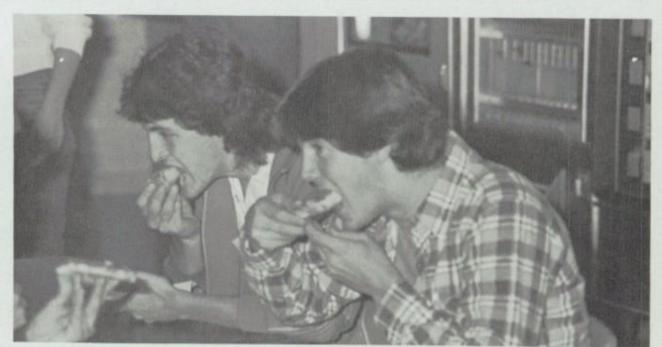

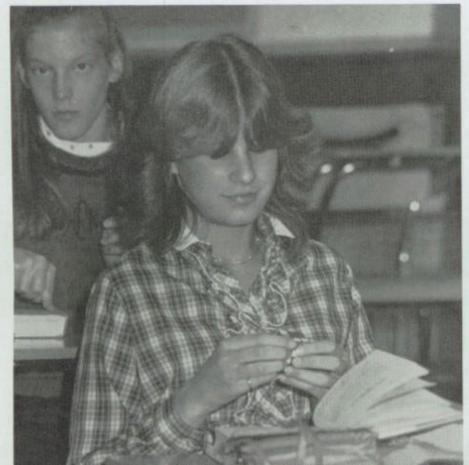

Rubik's Cube is a fascinating puzzle designed by an architect and teacher in Budapest, Hungary. These cubes were almost as common as textbooks during the school day. The cube consists of six faces with nine colored squares on each face. The problem is to restore a mixed-up cube to solid colors on all six faces, which seemed impossible to many students.

Rubik's Cube appeared everywhere in school. Instead of doing homework or reading in SSR, students labored to solve this puzzle. Kids carried their cubes to classes, to lunch, to studyhall. Since they came in all sizes and some even on key chains, students walked to classes, turning the faces on their cubes. They worked hours on end to solve this enigma. When they became frustrated or accepted the fact that they couldn't solve the cube, they did one of two things: either they got someone who knew how to solve the cube to do it, or they took their cube apart to solve the cube. Everyone seemed intrigued with this puzzle, so much so that 1981 will be remembered as "The Year of the Cube."

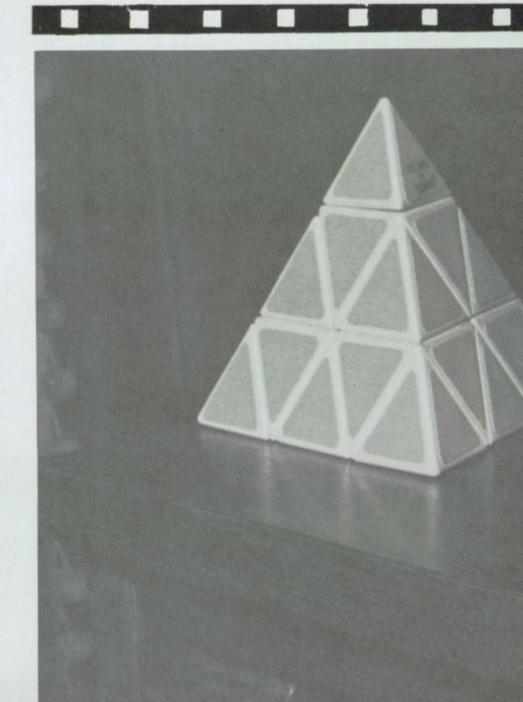

Sara Treutelaar ponders the Rubik's Cube. Below: Kristen Levesque believes the cube is a lot easier than English.

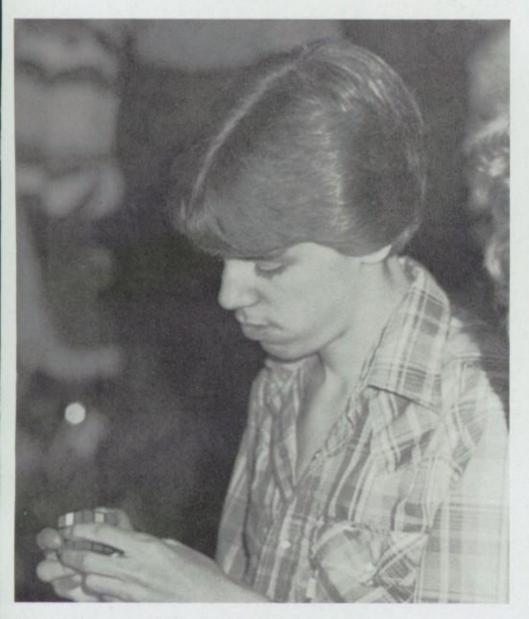

"No sweat, I'm a pro at it," assures Ms. Cox.

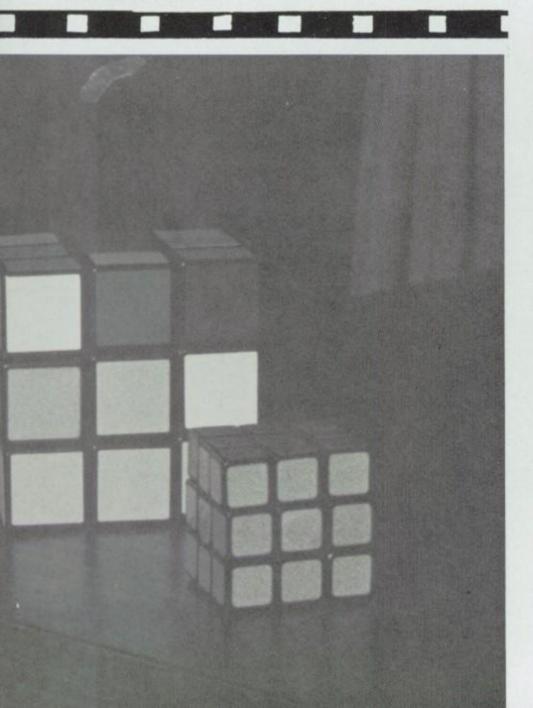

"The Year Of

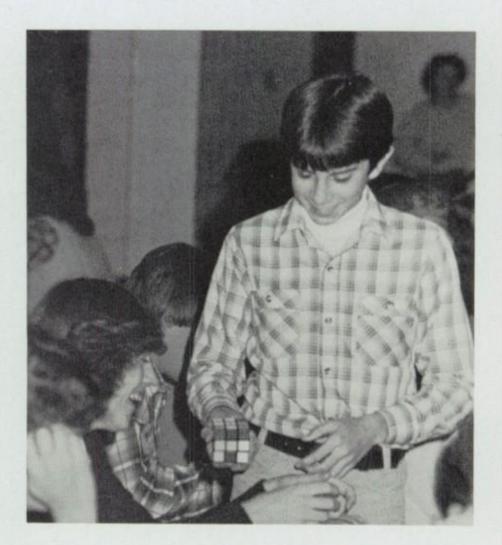

Tom Calaway considers the spatial relationships. "Now if I turn this, that one will go here; these will go over there . . ."

The Cube"

Jane Coyle is not going to let the cube phase her.

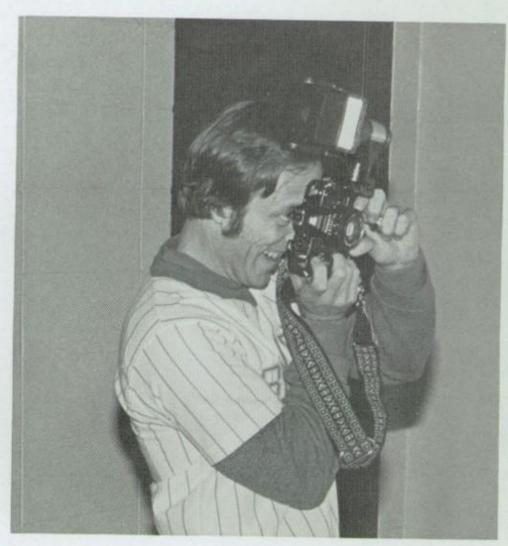

Dave Steeno asks, "Is this good enough?"

Another Successful Yearbook Completed

This year's Fox is indebted to Chris VanCaster, who ran the business end of the yearbook, and to Sheila Brady, who worked on production.

Responsible for production, copy, and photography, J. V. Wiza can be seen often with his faithful companion, the camera.

Richard Bennett, Kate Growt, and several imaginative seniors "ham" up a mock wedding for independent family living class.

The wind blows wherever it pleases; no one can predict where it will rest. Each year new students appear at De Pere High School to test their skills. They come from the city of De Pere; they come from the rural areas. They come from the wealthy, and they come from the poor. They come from large families, and they come from small families. Each year they come.

These initial years are their first steps on a road that, taken at its length, will lead them to a successful life. Here they are, studying together, playing together, smiling together, and getting on each other's nerves as well as getting into each other's hearts.

Students are separated into classes, but they share a common purpose. Not only do they learn subject matter; but they also learn about each other and about life. These four high school years speed by so rapidly, but their memories remain forever. The lucky ones make the most of this opportunity.

I want to thank my two faithful companions, Sheila Brady and Chris VanCaster, who made my work so much easier and so much more enjoyable. We hope that this annual records the many memories of this school year. Although it was the hard work of a few, we hope that this Fox will be enjoyed by many. It is held together by headaches, complaints, friendships, and laughter. When you look back at 1981-1982, you will remember it as a vintage year culminated by a remarkable annual.
